

Success Story

David had been struggling with very bad headaches for a couple of years. They were most noticeable after he had been at school or reading. Our first thought was his vision, so we saw an optometrist and found that he had 20-15 vision! Our next thought was sinus problems, but x-rays were clear. Medication gave little or temporary relief. After hearing of David's symptoms, a friend from school gave us information about vision therapy and of course we were willing to give it a try. His main problems were eye teaming + focusing issues which would definitely cause headaches. After just 3 months of therapy there was major improvement in those areas and headaches were not as frequent. Now after 6 months, headaches are even less frequent and greatly reduced in severity. While ~~he~~ is a 13-yr-old boy, I do believe the therapy has lessened his dread of reading and other school work.

I am truly grateful for our friend's recommendation and for the work of Vision Development Specialists!
